Henrico County
Domestic and Sexual Violence Needs Assessment
2011 Resource Guide

Henrico County Domestic and Sexual Violence Community Resource Guide

With V-STOP federal stimulus money, Henrico County Division of Police entered into a memorandum of understanding with other local and county agencies in 2009 to achieve the following goal:

Develop and implement more effective police, court, and prosecution policies, protocols, and services surrounding domestic and sexual violence

To better achieve this goal the Division of Police hired a temporary employee, under the county class Management Specialist I, informally known as Domestic Violence Project Assistant (DVPA), to conduct a thorough needs assessment of the current domestic and sexual violence related policies, protocols, orders, and services available in the county of Henrico.

Over the course of Henrico County's needs assessment on domestic and sexual violence, an apparent gap in service was that many service providers were unaware of the services available in Henrico County. The DVPA, who conducted this needs assessment, was in a unique position to create a comprehensive resource guide for service providers. The DVPA met with each service provider and was able to create a brief synopsis of the services each provider offers.

The following is a list of Henrico County's assets and resources for domestic and sexual violence. Local institutions consist of county agencies and non profit service organizations, and individual level services. State and national domestic and sexual violence service providers were also include in this resource guide.

Parole was abolished in Virginia for felonies committed on or after January 1, 1995. The parole decision function and supervision is provided to offenders who committed felonies before that date. Probation supervision and post release probation supervision for sentenced offenders who the judge feels needs 6 months to 3 years of probation supervision upon release are still available for offenders who fall under the new parole abolishment law.

Virginia Department of Corrections Victim Services Unit- (800-560-4292) - operates a toll-free, 24-hour, anonymous, computer-based telephone service (VINE) that provides victims of crime two important features: information and notification. Victims may call VINE at 800-467-4943 to check on an inmate's custody status. Victims are required to register with VADOC Victim Services Unit, using the designated forms, to receive notifications when an inmate is released, transferred, escapes and to learn of an inmate's parole status if the inmate is parole eligible.

They also advocate on behalf of crime victims, notify of changes in inmate transfers, release date, name change, escape and capture. They are there to explain the parole and probation supervision process, and provide victims with ongoing support, crisis intervention, information, and referrals.

Virginia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce- (804-378-4099) - goal is to strengthen and provide essential services to the Hispanic community. They provide immigration services, advocacy and legal services; employment notification, matching and consultation services; and business education, consulting and mentorship services. Their legal clinics are open to anyone within the community. The foundation's employment program offers job placement, in which they maintain a bilingual job placement database. Meanwhile, their business services help entrepreneurs start their business endeavors. They also help the youth of the Hispanic community, by providing scholarships in partnership with other corporations. (All of these services offered in both English and Spanish).

Virginia Employment Commission- (804-559-3133) - provides employer and job seeker services and information on unemployment benefits. They provide area job listings and assistance for finding employment.

Virginia Poverty Law Center- (1-800-868-8752; 804-782-9430) – provides leadership, support, training, public education and advocacy to address the civil legal needs of Virginia's low-income population. VPLC's domestic and sexual violence attorney provides legal consultations and limited direct legal representation of victims of domestic or sexual violence. One of VPLC's recent efforts has been to establish a free pilot immigration clinic specifically geared towards undocumented immigrant victims of domestic or sexual violence.

Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Action Alliance- (1-800-838-8238) – the Action Alliance is a nonprofit statewide coalition that operates a hotline to provide information and support for survivors, friends, family, and the general public. They also provide links to local crisis centers, shelters, or other human resource agencies through referrals and by directly connecting callers to local agencies via a 3-way calling system. In an effort to make the Hotline accessible to a wide array of callers, the Hotline employs bi-lingual (English/Spanish) staff and interpreters for over 140 different languages. Hotline advocates are also trained to respond to TTY or Voice Relay calls for callers who are deaf or hard of hearing. They provide written information, training, statistical and legislative information on how to stop domestic violence, and help those who have been victimized.
